GUILTY TO INDICTMENTAdds He Has No Intention of Murdering Boone.DEFERS SENTENCE UNTIL DEGREE IS DETERMINEDBaker Pleads Not Guilty, Saying He Has Nothing To Do with Murder.John C. Gackenbach, arraigned this morning before Judge Grant E.
Mouser in the common pleas court on an indictment charging first degree murder, entered a plea of guilty with the reservation that he entered the dairy company's office with the purpose of robbery and did not intend to kill Joseph Charles Boone.
Edward Boone attacked on a similar indictment entered a plea of not guilty.Gackenbach did not display any sign of nervousness or fear in reply to the judge as to whether he had a lawyer to defend him he stated that he had none and that he did not care for any as they would do him no good. He waived the reading of the indictment and stated that he had read it and fully understood it and realized the seriousness of the crime and the charge. In entering a plea of guilty to the indictment he added that he went to the dairy for the purpose of robbery, but that he had no intention of killing the man. Judge Mouser appointed Attorneys W. N. Harder and W. R. Martin as counsel for Gackenbach.Baker Pleads Not Guilty.
Baker entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment returned against him stating that he had nothing to do with the killing of the man. He stated that his father, who resides at Greenville, Pennsylvania, would secure counsel for him, but after inquiring into the circumstances of the father the judge appointed Attorneys J. D. Williamson and L. E. Myers to defend Baker.As the two prisoners left the courtroom in the custody of the sheriff and a deputy, a smile was on the face of Gackenbach. Baker appeared just a trifle nervous at intervals, but spoke in a clear voice in answering the queries of the judge.Gackenbach, who is twenty-one, and Baker, who is seventeen, were indicted for the murder of Joseph Charles Boone at the office of the Lasky Dairy company on the evening of February 8, both being arrested the morning following the killing as they were preparing to leave the city.
They later made confessions, Gackenbach admitting the shooting, while they confessed to being implicated in other crimes a few days previous to the killing.Sentence on Gackenbach will not be passed until the degree of the crime is determined. This may be done by the judge in the event Gackenbach does not change his mind and wish to be tried before a jury. Baker's hearing will be set later.JOHN CARTER DIES

RESOLUTIONS FAVOR ROAD SUPERVISION

Pomona Grange Advances Plan for Upkeep of Highways.

Resolutions in favor of curtailed road construction, road patrol and supervision and against the building of roads by apportionment were adopted at an all-day meeting of the Pomona grange last Saturday at the Big Island grange hall.

The morning meeting was devoted to business. At noon a basket lunch was served. Fifth degree work was given to a class of twelve in the afternoon by the degree team of the Montgomery grange. The meeting was well attended.

A plea for the upkeep of highways that have been constructed by the levying of special taxes on adjoining property owners was voiced in the preamble to the resolutions. In the first of the three resolutions the action of the county prosecuting attorney in "opposing the building of state roads at excessive prices" was commended and the "discontinuance of such improvements until the prices of road improvement material and labor comes to a level corresponding with prices received by products of the farm" was urged.

In the second resolution a plea was made for road supervision and a patrol system "that will insure to every road thorough and adequate repair at minimum cost" was made. The final resolution was a protest against "the plan of building pikes by apportioning the cost to the township, county and landowner, as it is unjust to those who have already built their pikes by private assessment." The resolutions were signed by W. B. LaRue, S. I. Clements and J. F. Stevenson and have been adopted by the Bethlehem, Big Island, Montgomery, Tymochtee and Mt. Olive granges. The next meeting of the Pomona grange will be May 6.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL MEN APPROVE LOAD LIMIT

Pledge Cooperation in Move To Preserve Roads.

ACT AT CONFERENCE IN W. R. HEISTAND'S OFFICE

Boards Agree To Lighten Loads and Cooperate in Every Way Possible.

Cooperation of township boards of education in the campaign being waged by County Surveyor William E. Weston for the preservation of Marion county roads was pledged Saturday afternoon at a joint conference at the offices of W. R. Heistand, county school superintendent. Virtually all of the townships interested were represented at the conference.

The meeting led to agreement of the various township representatives to do everything in their power to aid the county surveyor in his effort to prevent permanent damage to gravel roads while they are in their present condition. They agreed to lighten loads, put on more wagons, haul the pupils in automobiles when the roads are in exceptionally bad condition, change routes when necessary and cooperate in every other way possible.

Result of Findings.

The conference was the result of the recent regulations issued by the county surveyor limiting loads to be hauled on gravel roads while they were softened by weather conditions to 250 pounds for each tire inch of bearing surface. Many of the township school wagons could not continue in operation without reducing loads or widening the wheels under this limitation.

The meeting Saturday resulted in the adoption by the various school representatives present of the following resolution:

"Resolved that boards of education here represented approve the efforts of County Surveyor William E. Weston to preserve and protect the highways of Marion county and that said boards will cooperate with him and will proceed to meet provisions of the new road regulations as early as possible."

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS INITIATE LARGE CLASS

Father Denning Farewell Class Numbers Fifty-Four.

FATHER DENNING MADE
HONORARY LIFE MEMBER

Priest Makes Principal Address
at Dinner in Evening.
Members of Class.

A memorable page was written in the history of Marion Council No. 671 Knights of Columbus, with the initiation Sunday of the Father Denning Farewell class of fifty-four candidates, one of the largest classes ever initiated in the local organization. Knights were present from Kenton, Delaware, Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, Kirby, Galton, Mansfield and Ft. Wayne and the class included candidates from Marion, Kenton, Delaware and LaRue.

The work was in charge of the District Deputy, W. E. Haas, of Delaware, and was put on in the Elks' temple. A banquet was served in the I. O. O. F. hall by the members of the Catholic Ladies of Columbia at 6 o'clock, which was followed by a program of addresses and music.

Attend Mass in Body.
The candidates and members met Sunday morning at 7 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus hall and attended in a body the parish mass at St. Mary's church at 7:30 o'clock. The first and second degrees were conferred on the class by the local council at 8:30 o'clock and the third degree was put on at 1:50 o'clock and was in charge of the worthy district deputy, W. E. Haas, of Delaware.

Rev. Joseph M. Denning delivered the principal address of the evening and Charles W. Fairbanks presided as toastmaster. Covers were placed for about 350 knights at tables attractively decorated with candles in green cups and ferns. The dessert was shamrock ice cream. The hall was decorated with streamers of green and white and the lights were shaded with the green and white paper. Music during the program was contributed by St. Mary's school orchestra under the direction of L. B. McNeal. Musical numbers also were given by Miss Rita Snyder, who played a flute solo, and Miss Margaret Johnson played a saxophone solo. Following a vocal number by Miss Alice Mackan, Miss Margaret Hoover and Miss Rosella Miller played a violin duet.

After thanking the Knights of Columbus for the honor of naming the class for him and presenting him with a magnificent traveling trunk during the day, Rev. Father Denning said:

"Our existence as Catholic men, particularly as Knights of Columbus is a burning question before the public today. To reach out and take within our grasp the Christian manhood of today and to place it on a plane where its highest usefulness will have scope and its highest happiness find attainment is the proud tone in the palm of our existence. The aid, sympathy extended to us today by our church should convince every reflective mind of the utility of our organization.

Encounter More Pitfalls.
"A man never loves a thing so well as when he sees its intrinsic beauty by the light of his own intelligence. Now what is this intrinsic beauty? Men, particularly young men, encounter more pitfalls in life's path than any one else. Those of you who have passed through the dangerous period of youth, who now have families clustering around you are constrained by every motive of self interest to be elevated; the girls have fewer temptations, and are hedged in with so many precautions that under ordinary circumstances they are models of faith, sobriety and modesty. But the young man's problem is dangerous. Pleasure pursues him. He is as free as the bird of the air. He may read everything, hear and see everything and whether rich or poor temptation pleads his presence in her train. The adults here tonight keenly appreciate what I am saying. Few of us can refrain from poignant sorrow as we go back in memory to schoolboy days and recall the memory of those who were shipwrecked on that dangerous strand.

"For years we yearned for something which would prove a safe guard amongst these dangers, a breakwater which would keep our good manhood outside the lines of the shallows and the quicksands; something that would preserve their attachment to Christian principles, their hearts from corruption and their minds from blight, particularly during those years, when the character of their temptations were such as to make them shy Christian teaching and labor and abandon all church influence as too palling to their inclinations.

"The schools can not do this. No human pen can adequately praise the work done by the parochial school, particularly the work of the Sisters of St. Vincent. The human heart grows cold when exposed to the frosty chill of worldliness and we must look for something which will supplant and preserve the work of the schools.

K. of C. Is Remedy.
"What is the remedy? Without any hesitation I must say the Knights of Columbus. For years I have been in their midst and know them down to the core of their hearts. To be a K. of C. means to reach out and take within its grasp the cherished manhood of the day and mold it into a loyal citizenship and a Knight of Christ. Never in the history of Catholicism has there been a time when a loyal manhood is so imperiously demanded. The demagogue and socialist are alluring the masses and leading them off. Anti-Christian philosophy is destroying the very foundations on which society rests. To you then comes the call to marshal yourselves with the banner of your church and with her wage war on the plague of uncleanness so prevalent about us and when this call has been answered another item will be added to the big debt the world owes to the Knights of Columbus.

"It is nobleness of character and nobleness of deed that makes the Christian knight of today. There is a nobler cause for us to strive for than the knight of old who went forth to war for an earthly Jerusalem or to had a Holy Gail. You are soldiers of Christianity; you have sworn faith and allegiance to Him. Be noble and true then, living up to your dignity. Do the right thing. Be loyal to your church, you are her vanguard. Let her arms and interest be yours, because she stands for all that is pure, holy and just in life."

Father Kearns Responds.

Rev. Thomas J. Kearns, chaplain, responded to the address made by Father Denning and expressed himself as being fortunate in being assigned to do his first work in the priesthood under the supervision of Rev. Father Denning and compared Father Denning's pastorate in Marion to that of St. Paul's work of establishing churches in the countries along the Mediterranean.

In speaking of "The Order," District Deputy W. E. Haas, touched on the work of the Knights of Columbus not only in this country but in the whole world and told how the order was assisting in the solving of the great problems of today. "The problem of capital and labor is the greatest proposition today," he said but expressed the belief that the two could get together by building up a spiritual bond. "Labor," Mr. Haas declared, "must understand that a fair day's work must be given while the employer must pay a fair living wage and both will realize that both must work together for public good."

Past Grand Knight, Carl C. Graf spoke of the new home and told of the plans made for the raising of money for the building of the home. An interesting talk on the council was given by Past Grand Knight L. A. Aze in which he told of the organization of the society May 25, 1902 with a class of fifty-three candidates. The total enrollment now is 403.

Rev. Father Francis J. Keyes, pastor of St. Aquinas parish, Toledo, formerly of Galton, who came to Marion Sunday to bid farewell to Rev. Father Denning, gave a brief address in which he spoke the sentiments of a host of admiring friends when he declared that during his acquaintance with Father Denning he found him not only a true neighbor but a true priest, working in season and out of season for the temporal and spiritual welfare of the men, women and children in his care.

Refers to Appointment.
In referring to Rev. Father Denning's appointment as counsel general and agent to Tanzania, Rev. Father Keyes said it was an honor to the mother church, an honor to the Catholic priesthood, an honor to the land, to state, city and to St. Mary's church.

Following the address Charles W. Fairbanks presented Rev. Father Denning with a gold card case containing an honorary life membership in the local council. The following candidates were initiated: Albert Ackerman, Francis Sartz, Daniel Conley, Caesar Cardosi, Lawrence Dowd, Paul Quinn, John F. Williams, Kenton; Robert Foley, John C. Wirthman, Francis Foley, Edward Stack, Walter Held, John E. Stack, Edward Giff, An. Robert E. King, Harry Malone, Delaware; George J. Vincke, LaRue; Russell D. Luke, Joseph Snyder, John M. Pizar, Philip J. Pruzzo, Edward J. Moran, Hubert A. Sammons, Leo Knight, Paul F. Libber-

BADE RUTH TO GET $75,000 ANNUALLY

And $500 for Each Home Run Made During Contract.

HUGE SALARY WON ON TOSS OF COIN

Signs Up for Five-Year Contract. Main Him the Highest Paid Ball Player.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 6.—Just as though the signing of a five-year contract at terms that might make a railroad president wince, was an every day matter to him, the eminent Mr. Babe Ruth went about the business of training for the 1922 baseball season with seeming indifference to the buzz of comment occasioned when he appeared in the hotel lobby today.

Ruth arose comparatively early for a man who has contracted to fall heir to a half million dollars in the next five years. Contract or no contract, he wanted to get into a round of golf before he donned a baseball uniform for an informal workout with the other Yankees in training here.

Like a good gambler, he knew how to win like a gentleman. It would have been the same had he lost for the conference with Colonel T. L. Huston, resulting in the slugger coming to terms last night in a contract said to call for not less than $75,000 a year for five years with a bonus of $500 for each home run made, was a meeting of two game sports.

Wins on Toss of Coin. Ruth was adamant for the price he had set originally upon his services. The colonel named a compromise figure. But neither would give an inch.

"Let's toss a coin for it, then," suggested Ruth. "It's all right with me," quoth the good colonel.

"But I will have to consult with Ruppert."

Accordingly he got in touch with the president of the Yankees, gained his consent to the proposal over the long distance telephone, pulled a coin from his pocket and gave it a blithe toss in the air.

"Tails," yelled Ruth, and "tails" it was.

A moment later, he was signed to a five year contract, making him the highest paid man in baseball, or any sport, by many thousands of dollars.

Police Confiscate Baggage Late Saturday.

TWO-DAY WATCH FOR OWNERS FRUITLESS

Baggage Man's Announcement on Unloading Trunks Thought To Have Frightened Owner.

When the baggage man of a train unloaded two trunks at the union depot Thursday evening he announced in a loud voice that the trunks were leaking and that it was the odor of whisky. A policeman was one of the hearers of the remark and he made an inspection as a result of which he came to the same conclusion as the baggage man of the train.

The trunks were taken to the baggage room and a watch was kept on them with a view to arresting the owners when they called for the trunks. This watch lasted until late Saturday afternoon, when it was finally concluded that the owners did not intend to claim them and suffer arrest. The police took a search warrant to the station and after searching the trunks and discovering they contained liquor, took them to police headquarters.

Three Five-Gallon Cans.

One of the trunks contained two five-gallon cans of corn whisky and the other contained one five gallon can. An overcoat was in each of the trunks and burlap was packed around the cans. The leaking of one of the cans in each trunk saturated the packing and enough leaked from the trunks to make it noticeable in the car.

The trunks are said to be the property of two foreigners and when the train pulled in there were four foreigners standing near the baggage car when the baggage man gave out the information that the trunks contained liquor. It is supposed that the owners were in the quarter and realized the danger and consequence of claiming the trunks, which were checked out of Detroit. About two gallons of the liquor leaked out. The police have a clue that may result in the arrest of one of the parties.

To Lift This Country Up and On

An Editorial from Collier's, The National Weekly.

If public-utility companies bore the names of the men who manage them—as do department stores, for instance—there would no doubt have always been a better general attitude toward them.

If Thompson's Street Car Company, or the Jones & Smith Heat, Light and Power Company were so named, the man who had a row to pick with them would usually go straight to see neighbor Thompson or Jones or Smith, as the case might be, and that is a very different matter indeed from writing a letter to some company doing business under the general name of the Brown's Ferry Street Car Company or the Amalgamated Gas and Electric Corporation.

But this is a result not to be achieved—for the great utility companies are not one-man concerns, but are more and more able to say that they are owned by their customers.

Not wholly does the man with money in the bank or in life insurance understand that he is burning his own gas and riding on his own trolley; but he is coming to that knowledge, and will come to it all the sooner as the public-service companies put their cards on the table and invite him to look at them.

Meanwhile, there are distinct signs of increasing fairness in the attitude of the American people toward these companies. For instance, there is a growing sentiment through the country that the traction lines should be allowed to charge a carrying fare sufficient not only to take care of their fixed charges, but with something left over to provide betterments and extensions.

It is a hopeful sign when a review of the past year shows the public utility question as a whole receiving sane and businesslike treatment at the hands of the regulatory bodies in the different States.

No one factor, except the human factor, is contributing more to get this great nation back on its financial and economic legs than is the factor of electricity. Electric energy is everlastingly on the job to reduce costs, to cut overhead, to shorten distances, to eliminate loss of time, to make one machine (whatever that machine produces) do the work of many hands, to increase the comforts and lighten the burdens of the nation.

It was Watt who more than a century ago coined the term "horsepower," using a strong draft horse as a unit. Assuming that a horse produces one horsepower—which is true, of course, only for the few hours that he can stand continuous effort—it would take twenty million horses to furnish the power now supplied by electrical central stations in the United States.

"If those twenty million horses," says an authority, "were tied to both sides of a picket line in accordance with the U. S. Army Field Service Regulations, the double line of horses would be 6,300 miles long, twice the distance from New York to San Francisco."

A cartoonist could make that picture graphic, as he could a picture of the 1,400,000 individual men and women in America who are reported to have money invested in electrical securities; and as he could make a picture of the three hundred million dollars in funds which the insurance companies are said to have invested in public-utility securities.

We pass to something more important and less easy to picture; the growing need of the country for homes. House building lags. Whatever increase in homes we make is more than kept pace with by the increase in population. The need must be met, and it will be; but we should remember that every home that is built is a "prospector" for electric energy. It will need a telephone, or electric lights, or gas, or all three—and it will need transportation close by it, the closer the better.

The public-utility companies, to meet this great demand, must develop and must finance the development. The financing is done either by selling securities directly to the holders or to the same holders indirectly through the insurance companies and banks.

The spirit of fair play, already mentioned, will make this financing possible on a basis that is fair and just to the companies and the public. The cheaper we can make shafts and wheels turn; the more we can cut down transportation costs; the more we can use the great natural forces now dormant in rivers and waterfalls, the better will we be able to keep, not only abreast but ahead of the competition of the world in the making of those articles that other countries can produce as well as we.

Hand in hand with the development of transportation will go this giant, electricity, to cut down the cost of railroad operation, to give better street-car service, to turn more wheels, to carry more messages over telephone and telegraph lines; in plain words, to lift this country up and on.

Rome fell when the people of her empire took to building in cities; for signs of omniscience, like the great historian Ferrero, say that the United States may well profit by Rome's example. "A nation like a man can die of poor circulation when the blood is congested in the heart." Only within the past few years has come a realization of the danger; only lately have there come into the picture those thousands and millions of slim, strong wires along which speeds energy capable of producing more power, light and heat than any other known force.

That energy, given its chance to work throughout the length of the land, is going to remove all danger of excessive urbanization. Day after day, given its chance, it makes the small town a better town in which to live; it brings the farm closer to the small town, putting the farmer in instant touch with the merchant who buys his product, the doctor who tends his ill, and the neighbor whose problems are as his own.

More miles of good roads, more motor-propelled vehicles, extension of railroad lines—and electricity, with its multitude of present uses and its infinite future possibilities—these will guard us forever against the perils of city congestion.

Let's become more than a nation of button pushers; we have it in our hands to become a nation that really knows something about the most tremendous force in the world.
